About the speaker:

Dr. Jaypayl, formerly a professor in the Agriculture Department, experienced a transformative realization one day. He observed that a significant number of individuals were opting for professions outside the realm of agriculture. Drawing inspiration from his father, who happened to be a farmer, he made a courageous decision to embark on a career in farming himself. Over the course of the past nine years, he has dedicated himself to farming and proudly asserts that, despite a relatively small land area, he has managed to achieve impressive yields through the implementation of organic and multi-layer farming techniques. Dr. Jaypayl not only imparts valuable training on these methods but also serves as an inspirational figure, encouraging others to consider farming as a fulfilling and rewarding profession.
